Regulators from seven states, including Illinois, attended an educational post-natural disaster forum in Oklahoma, following the tornadoes that hit the cities of Moore and El Reno in May.

Jim Stephens, deputy director of the IL Dept of Insurance Property & Casualty Compliance Unit (blue shirt, far right) participated.

“This forum is an important opportunity to share our coordinated efforts to assist consumers in the aftermath of these storms,” said John D. Doak, Oklahoma Insurance Commissioner. “Our department continues to work diligently on outreach and response efforts to those in impacted areas.”
